

Choose Columbia
Columbia Economic Development Corporation

James R. Campion

Columbia Economic Development Corporation Board of Directors

James R. Campion was elected to the Columbia Economic Development Corporation Board of Directors on December 20, 2000.

James R. Campion serves as President of Columbia-Greene Community College. Campion has a long history with the college, having served in several administrative positions including director of financial aid and veteran's affairs; assistant dean for community and educational services; dean of community services; and executive director of the Columbia-Greene Community Foundation. Campion previously worked for two years at Dutchess Community College in Poughkeepsie as a financial aid counselor.

James R. Campion holds an A.A., Dutchess Community College; B.S., SUNY College New Paltz; M.S., C.G.S., SUNY Albany; and was awarded the Chancellors Award of Excellence in Professional Service in 1983.